Part(ii). Read the following paragraph carefully and answer part (a), (b),(c) and (d). Marks (10)

A pond is a small area of still, fresh water. It is usually smaller than a lake. Ponds are not as deep as lakes. Water in a river or a stream moves, but pond water stays still. A pond is a habitat. A habitat is a place in nature where animals and plants live. A pond is home of many living things. Many animals live in or near ponds. Fish, turtles and snails live in the water. Some animals live near ponds. Plants live in the ponds, too. Algae is a kind of plant often found in ponds. Another plant that lives in ponds is the water lily. Its roots go to the bottom of the pond. Its wide leaves float on the top of water.

(a). What is its habitat? Marks (2)

(b). What makes a pond different from a lake as mentioned in the paragraph? Marks (2)
